

SALT LAKE GETS OLD PAINTING

TROUSSETT'S "FIRST MASS"

PRESENTS TREASURE TO JOHN A. MURRAY OF MONTEREY.

John Maguire, the veteran actor of Salt Lake, secured a famous painting in Golconda recently. Mr. Maguire is now in the Sagebrush state securing data for a series of reminiscences on Nevada for The Herald. He dropped into a hotel at Golconda recently, and in glancing over the pictures hanging on the drawing room walls noticed a large picture representing a mass being celebrated under a large tree. Mr. Maguire learned that the painting was Troussett's "The First Mass," showing a celebration of this service being conducted by the historical Catholic explorer, Father Junipero, after landing on the shores of California. Louis Duterre, proprietor of the Golconda hotel, was offered a handsome price for this picture, and the painting became the property of Mr. Maguire, who shipped it with others to John A. Murray, a Montana millionaire. Mr. Murray resides at Monterey, Cal., and has taken a great interest in all that pertains to the works of Father Junipero and the early padres. Mr. Maguire's description of the painting follows:

"Securely packed in a case measuring nearly eight feet long and six feet high, Troussett's painting, 'The Landing of Junipero Serra,' and the celebration of 'The First Mass' under the live oak tree at Monterey, arrived here by express from Golconda for me yesterday.

Depicts Early Scene.
"The canvas is nearly seven feet wide by five and a half feet high, and is mounted in a heavy walnut frame. The subject is the celebration of the first mass on the spot ever since marked by a cross under the branches of the live oak, where a temporary altar was erected for the ceremony. Over the altar and secured by common ship rope fastenings to the branches of the tree is a canopy of ship's canvas. In the center of the altar is the well known crucifix, now in the Mission church at Monterey, and which Father Junipero always held in his hand when preaching to the Indians.

"On a stout arm of the tree are suspended two of the mission bells. The picture is taken at the supremely impressive moment during the elevation of the chalice, which is uplifted by Father Junipero, while the little congregation are on their knees bowing in adoration of the holy sacrifice. The father is being assisted in the celebration by the two padres who arrived with him on that memorable 3d of June, 1770.

Indian Boy Serves Mass.
"There are more than sixty figures in the picture. Facing the altar, but at a respectable distance, are three rows of Spanish soldiers in their leather jackets and military accoutrements; immediately backing them in their picturesque gear are the sailors of the frigate which is seen at anchor close to the shore. While at either side of the altar are the superior officers, military and naval, of the expedition.

"A central figure is that of a young boy, mentioned by Father Junipero in his diary, who is 'serving mass,' while on one side is a group of converted Indians who accompanied the expedition. On the opposite side the Monterey Indians are curiously peering between the rocks at the strange ceremony.

"There is a magnificent view of that portion of Monterey harbor sweeping around the old townsite and the hazy brown view of the further shore."

BLACK JET ORNAMENTS.

Stunning hair ornaments in jet are being worn now with street and afternoon costumes by fashionable women. They are popular with young girls, too, and will probably be adopted as a part of correct fall head dress this year. The fact that they seem a trifle unusual, since they have been worn before only when women were in mourning, but now the use of these jet pins and combs as adornment for the newest style coiffures is no longer symbolic of grief, and a matron who cannot boast of at least one piece of jet for her hair feels the necessary accessories are incomplete.

These jet combs and pins are particularly attractive, too. Because of the designs in which they are made. Original in pattern, the combs are on effective lines that are becoming to almost any kind of up-to-date hairdressing, whether worn high or low. They are so constructed, too, with short teeth and wide curved tops, that they are suitable to almost any shape head.

Of the prettiest ornaments shown in the shops, one of the most attractive patterns is a comb with a wide, deep curved top. The latter, composed of a series of graduated olive like pieces, has the appearance of the half of a crown, and is especially effective used with a high coiffure to give height to a stout or small woman. Another comb made on practically the same lines has the graduated knobs sloping downward from the center, but instead of being round as the olive pattern, they are faced, cut in a pretty style. Pointed appear like top combs are worn with afternoon gowns, and are decidedly attractive in either white or gray hair or in brown or any of the dark shades.

CARD PARTY REFRESHMENTS

BY CORNELIA C. BEDFORD.

Bridge, whist and the various card games are so much in vogue nowadays that dishes, favors, etc., are eagerly sought for by women who belong to card clubs meeting at private houses. Here are several menus, more or less elaborate, from which one may choose:

MENU NO. 1.

Sweetbreads a la Mephisto

Finger Rolls Coffee

MENU NO. 2.

Oysters Duxelle Finger Rolls

Figs in Cream Cake Coffee

MENU NO. 3.

Mushrooms in Cases

Sweetbread Salad Cheese Fingers

Orange Cream Coffee

MENU NO. 4.

Egg Cutlets Cream Sauce

Celery Sandwiches

Stuffed Tomato Salad

Fancy Cakes Fried Chocolate

The sweetbreads named on the first menu are to be soaked in cold water, changing often, until they look white; then drop into boiling salted water and par-boil gently for twenty minutes; drain and drop in cold water until chilled. For each pair make a sauce with one level tablespoonful each of butter and flour, a dash of cayenne, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of celery salt, one quarter of a cupful each of cream and veal stock. When smoothly thickened add one trifling chopped fine, six chopped mushrooms and the sweetbreads cut in dice. Stand over hot water until the meat is hot or until a moment before serving. Take off, stir in one well beaten egg and ten drops of lemon juice. Have ready either cooked Swedish timbale cases or some plain paper cases. Dip the edge of each case in unbeaten white of egg, then in finely chopped parsley. Fill the cases and put a tiny pinch of the parsley on the center of each.

To make the tsarina cream soak one quarter of a package of gelatine in four tablespoonfuls of cold water and stand over the kettle until dissolved. Whip one pint of thick sweet cream to a solid froth after coloring it with green coloring. Stir lightly into the frothy mass three tablespoonfuls of sifted powdered sugar and strain in the gelatine (slightly cooled). Stir frequently but very lightly, and when it begins to thicken and gradually four tablespoonfuls of sherry, one teaspoonful of vanilla and one-half of a cupful of blanched and chopped almonds. Turn into individual fancy serving cups and over the top of each sprinkle a mixture made up of equal proportions of finely chopped blanched pistachio nuts and coarse granulated sugar.

If the second menu is chosen allow for each person five large oysters. Chop fine some blanched celery, have ready some fine bread crumbs. Break one egg in a saucer, add a teaspoonful of warm water and beat just enough to mix. Rub the oysters and dry on a cloth. Dip each in the egg, roll in crumbs and arrange in individual ramekins or shells, sprinkle each oyster with salt, pepper and a little chopped celery. Over the top pour one generous tablespoonful of cream, sprinkle with a few buttered crumbs. Bake twelve minutes in a very quick oven.

Figs in cream are delicious; they must be prepared the day before. Pull meaty bag figs apart, wash, then soak over night in cold water. Simmer in a double boiler with just enough water to cover until plump and tender. Drain and cut figs and add a half cupful of sugar and a teaspoonful of vanilla, cover and draw back where they will simply keep hot for an hour. Transfer the figs to a dish, boil the syrup until thick and rich. Take off and when cool add four tablespoonfuls of sherry and a teaspoonful more of vanilla and pour over the figs. Serve heaped with whipped cream.

The orange cream on the third menu is new and delicate. Soak a half package of granulated gelatine in a half cupful of cold water. Scald a pint of milk, pour it over the yolks of five eggs beaten until light with the grated rind of an orange and one cupful of sugar. Cook and stir until like custard. Take off, add the gelatine, stir until dissolved and strain. When cool add the strained juice of five oranges. When thickening add a pint of cream whipped to a solid froth. When very thick heap in paper cases. Just before serving sprinkle with yellow "hundreds and thousands."

The egg cutlets need first a very thick sauce made with one quarter of a cupful of butter, two-thirds of a cupful of flour and one pint of milk. Season with two drops of onion juice, a teaspoonful of salt, one-third of a teaspoonful of white pepper, a dash of cayenne and two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley. Stir into this six hard boiled eggs cut fine, turn on a greased dish and set in a cold and firm. Mold in cutlets, dip each in an egg and fine dry bread crumbs and fry golden brown in smoking lard. Drain fat. Drain well on soft paper and stick a tuft of parsley in the bone end of each cutlet.

SHAWL SHAPES FOR THE FALL
Plays on the pelerine, stole, scarf and other old-time wraps have been so numerous and overused during the last two or three years that the very title of these time-honored garments have become shopworn and fairly dog-eared. The coming season is to have a change, and we are to hear the changes rung on "shawl shapes." The advertising man is already out with the term and is proclaiming fur "shawls," a, of course, September prices. Meanwhile the pretty shawl-shaped wraps introduced in the spring are having an undisturbed day.

It is a matter now of enjoying the fashions that are, while the ones that are to come are being materialized. Since the salient features of styles being exploited by the world of dress at fashionable French watering places are more than suggestions of the models to be launched in the fall, records of gowns worn at such resorts are of prime importance. At a famous meet lately some of the most exclusive fashionables wore lingerie toilets. A Duchess was gowned in a white robe of this order, with a tiny hat surmounted by ostrich tips. A simple little gown of embroidered muslin with a soft Nattier blue silk scarf and black picture hat trimmed with algerettes was the choice of another woman of less title, but equal rank in swiftness. Another leader of things sartorial wore a toilet that was a froth of Valenciennes lace, embroidery and little bows of white satin ribbon. She wore a black hat and carried a black and white striped parasol. A well known society woman appeared in a white linen gown, encrusted with Venetian lace and finished with linen passementerie. The hat was of white straw trimmed with white grapes and tulle.

THE BREATH OF LIFE.
It's a significant fact that the strongest animal on its size, the gorilla, also has the largest lungs. Powerful lungs means powerful creatures. How to keep the breathing organs right should be man's chiefest study. Like thousands of others, Mrs. Ora A. Stephens of Port Williams, O., has learned how to do this. She writes: "Three bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery stopped my cough of two years and cured me of what my friends thought consumption. O, it's grand for throat and lung troubles." Guaranteed by Z. C. M. I. Drug Dept. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.
